REMARKS:

Exchanges of notes:

Exchange of notes signed at Rome Feb. 2, 1948 "constitute a declaration by the two countries that they will seek at some appropriate time in the future to enter into arrangements designed to promote closer cultural relations, particularly through the exchange of students, teachers, and professional people." (Sen. Ex. E, p. 4)

Exchange of notes signed at Rome July 26, 1949 refer to Art. XXIV of the treaty and record the understanding between the U.S. and Italy "...that the provisions of the aforesaid Treaty relating to the treatment of goods do not preclude action by either of the parties thereto which is required or specifically permitted by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade or by the Havana Charter for an International Trade Organization, during such time as the party applying such measures is a contracting party to the General Agreement or is a member of the International Trade Organization, as the case may be."
